

County Shows Progress Toward Highway System

Los Angeles County is making significant progress toward the improvement of its highway system, but unprecedented growth and a public dependency on automobile travel threaten to pose huge demands within the next 10 years.

That statement by Supervisor Burton W. Chace, chairman of the County Road Committee, summarizes a list of 1968 Highway needs submitted to supervisors last week.

Prepared by the County Road Department for the State Division of Highways, the report indicates that significant strides have been taken since the last such study in 1964. Even greater efforts will be necessary, however, if the list of inadequate roads is to be kept to a minimum by 1978, the report said.

master plan dates back to 1940 and has been updated regularly in cooperation with cities.

Supervisors also assist cities with the improvement of major streets within the city limits through allocation of the county's gas tax revenues. "While the county usually funds and supervises construction of major highway construction this fiscal year approximately 45 per cent is earmarked for projects within cities.
